General Report Comments: Upon arrival, no one seemed to be home.

I went to the back door and saw the dogs laying in the sheltered area. I called the dog and he came out, he was walking fine and when he saw me he begun to limp. The wounds have healed very well. No swelling or heat.

I touched the leg and the dog did not react negatively. I walked off and the dog walked with me normally. When I then spoke with the dog he lifted his leg and begun limping again. It appears as if the dog is faking the limp for attention.

I will do a final check in 2 weeks time and see if the dog does the same.
