General Report Comments: The entire property is enclosed with brick walls secured with a jump lip (metal fencing curving inwards on top the walls). The front gate is a palisade gate that is reinforced with zinc plates making it a solid gate. Mr Wilkinson informed me that his female Husky is the escape artist and since he installed the jump lip on the walls the dog has not been able to escape the property. The yard is not separated but there is someone home all day to be with the dogs and monitor them. The dogs have access to inside and outside almost all of the times, and at night the dogs all sleep inside the house. By the back door is a large plastic shell bath filled with water for the dogs to jump into and play when they overheat. Mr Wilkinson agreed to sterilise his female Jack Russel wiht the adoption.
