Hi Jaco,

Thank you for your patience in my response.

I have managed to speak with the person who we thought was the owner of the dog, who advised me that he is not the owner. The actual owner of the dog was also a tenant on the property and moved out while he was also away from the property. He has not heard or spoken with the tenant (actual dog owner) since the tenant left the property, nor does he know their details or where he went.

I asked him if he would like to have the dog return to the property, but he will have to care for the dog and he seemed eager, however, he said in the same sentence if we can find a new home for the dog he won't mind.

I asked him if he could come through to the SPCA this week, as we would need to complete paperwork and he advised that he can only come to the SPCA on Monday morning (5 Feb 2024), as he is working this entire week and won't be able to take off.

I agreed to meet with him on Monday.

When I meet with him on Monday I will ask him to sign the dog over as abandoned as he is currently in charge of the property where the dog was and does not have any details of the actual owner that left the dog behind.

Kindly advise if I may proceed.
