Comments:	An incorrect note was captured on 18 December in error. On that date, while I was conducting outreach at Happy Valley, I met with the owner of the dog that was allegedly beaten to death with a hammer. I introduced myself and explained the purpose of my visit. I interviewed the owner and asked him to explain what had occurred. According to the owner, he was walking his dog off leash when they passed a friend , who allegedly attacked the dog with a hammer without provocation. This version of events appeared unlikely and improbable. As a witness, I requested that the owner compile an affidavit so that a case could be opened against the alleged perpetrator. He agreed to do so; however, he did not appear to fully understand what was required. I then advised him to attend the nearest police station, where he could explain the incident in detail and be assisted with compiling an affidavit, including in Afrikaans if necessary.
