Before proceeding, it is important to understand that surrendering an animal is a permanent decision.

As part of the surrender process, the owner will be required to complete and sign surrender documentation. By signing these documents, the owner legally transfers all rights and ownership of the animal to the SPCA. Once the paperwork has been signed and the surrender has been finalized, the animal becomes the property of the SPCA.

Please note that there is no cooling-off period following a surrender. This means that the owner will not be able to return at a later stage to reclaim the animal, as the transfer of ownership is final and irrevocable.

Please confirm that you understand and are happy to proceed?
